PART 4: NETWORKING EVENTS

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2017

1. IMA Industry Tour (Optional; please choose one; additional fees apply. All tours are within walking distance to the hotel.)

2 p.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Dynergy

$10

Energy services are critical to our everyday lives. How do energy companies operate to ensure we get the power we need? Take a stroll through the offices of Dynergy, the third largest Independent Power Producer in the U.S., to experience an “energy trading floor” and talk with the financial staff to understand what is behind the numbers that power our businesses and our homes.

Hess Corporation

$10

Texas is the bullseye for the oil and gas industry. It’s therefore no wonder that the Hess Corporation, a leading Fortune 500 global independent energy company, has a major presence in the downtown Houston area. Come tour its unique headquarters and learn about the company’s impressive history and dynamic vision for its future. Members of the accounting and finance team will also be available to talk about their roles and responsibilities as well as career opportunities within the organization.

Houston Astros (Minute Maid Park)

$10

Ever wonder what it is like to work for a professional sports team? The Houston Astros have graciously offered to provide IMA Student Conference attendees with a special tour of their stadium and access to their accounting and finance staff members, who will talk about their responsibilities and answer questions.

CenterPoint Energy

$10

CenterPoint Energy keeps the lights on and provides clean natural gas for homes, factories, and businesses. An energy-delivery company focused on domestic energy delivery, including electric transmission and distribution, natural gas distribution, and competitive energy services operations, CenterPoint Energy employs more than 7,700 and serves more than 5 million metered customers across six states. Take a tour of the downtown Houston headquarters to learn more about what makes the company tick and how the accounting and finance staff help fuel success.
